

Editorial

On behalf of the Editorial Board, it gives me great pleasure to welcome you to the inaugural issue of Semantics-Syntax Interface.

Edited by young scholars, Semantics-Syntax Interface seeks to provide a platform for the discussion of theoretical developments in the syntax/semantics interface based on formal and experimental methods. The journal welcomes research articles, short contributions (squibs and replies), and review articles mainly focused on (but not limited to) mood and modality, quantification, argument structure, tense, aspect, event structure, and negation.

The journal's publication frequency is two issues per year, and a double-blind peer review process will be applied to all submissions. Semantics-Syntax Interface is an international journal, freely available online to all readers. The journal permits unrestricted, non-commercial use, distribution and reproduction of all articles in any medium, provided that the work is properly cited.

In the development of Semantics-Syntax Interface to date, we have been able to enlist the support of our honorary editorial members who have been active in promoting this online publication forum to their students. We would therefore like to thank them for the support that they provided in this inaugural editorial. We are also extremely grateful to Gholamhosein Karimi-Doostan, Professor of Linguistics and Dean of the Faculty of Letters and Humanities at the University of Tehran, for all his support in launching this journal.
